

FIKA RIA SANTIKA

(b. 1987, West Sumatra, Indonesia)

Nature and the surrounding environment has been an inexhaustible source of inspiration, and a subject of Fika's observation of nature has been a unique and different form of learning. She was born and raised in the Minangkabau culture, a society which adopted the philosophies of nature into its way of life. In other words, 'Alam Takambang Jadi Guru' makes her contemplate the deeper meaning of nature's role as a philosophy of life. This proverb is familiar to most Minang people, but it left Fika wondering whether it still retains its relevance amongst youths in today's society. Departing from this thought, she was curious to dig deeper on a Minangkabau essence which has made her who she is today; a curiosity which magnifies as she left her hometown, a huge desire which arises as I got to know cultures other than my own.

Cycle, growth, layers, dynamics, changes, and uncertainties are just a few of the things she discovered in her study of nature. From these characters, Fika's series of work entitled 'Tumpuk Lapis Tampak Isi' (Stacked Layers, Visible Borders) started to form. This series explores the morning scenery in particular, and how its visually constructed by layers of mist and fog. This morning scenery is a metaphor which features prominently in searching for the essence of a Minangkabau identity. In this process of discovery, Fika went through several different phases which felt like stacked layers. These stacked layers are a different form of my personal experience of interacting with nature. 'Tumpuk Lapis Tampak Isi' has become a main theme of her artistic practice since the beginning of 2016, and it remains an ongoing process of research until now.
